R*n 993—Hot Cross Bunnies @ Calder Road Wynyard, set by Giggles
(36) , April 12th, 2009.

*The pack: Chunder(183), Speed Hump(348), GonZo(161), Ringo(631), Puss in Boots
(8), Hand Job(2), Maggie(2), Flasher(29), A Bit of This(145), Dini(387)*

Chicken/Rabbit Farm: Paint, paint, splog, splog, supervise. Make coffee for Flasher. Print the trash. Make calming noises at Bit of This, pat the dog. Get Ringo and the Hash grog out the door and into the car. Sigh. Drive to Giggles' place. Hug Puss in Boots. Admire freshly cleaned carpet. Walk to bathroom in dirty sneakers. After screaming ceases, take directions from Giggles. Car-pool the enormous pack (2 cars full). Follow Chunder in the vintage Lexcen...still following...what's the speed limit here?...still following...those Lexcens were built to last...not for speed, obviously...are we there yet?

At the Calder Road turn-off, there was no evidence of promised visiting Hashers. Hand Job had phoned a head (Dini's) to say that she and her main squeeze Maggie would be swelling the ranks of the Burnie Hash pack on their way back from Smithton. After another phone call and a few minutes wait (shut in the car with Flasher, so it seemed longer), the environmentally irresponsible red 4WD appeared, and was guided to the r*n start, approximately 7.264 km up Calder Road.

Arriving at Farb's place, the pack of 3 cars-worth disembarked in the farmyard, and was soon called away on a healthy trail of flour. Down the paddock laneway, a few trail gaps here and there, but around and into the next paddock...false trail here....no trail there....Trailmaster headed for the nearest high ground to see if he could find anything. Hussar! A Mastercheck! The hash-man is a genius - first he gets us lost, then he finds trail again. But trail had made it there by a different backward root, so after a bit of back-tracking downhill and re-hashing, the pack picked a likely looking gateway and lo! There was flour, heading across the top of a dam.

Ringo was dragged away from tinkering with an Ajax A2 pump on the dam wall—even thinking about looking at one of those pumps can cause them to malfunction, and we didn't want to piss off the property owners. Trail meandered through a sea of downy thistles, steadily losing altitude and diving into the ferny glade near a creek-let. Here were low hanging branches, one particularly well-hung with a bucket of foil-covered Easter chockies and a Mastercheck. What could a Hasher do? – leaving that stuff in the bush could pollute the environment. Had to eat them, really. No choice.

Maggie was as keen as a buck rabbit in a hare salon, and darted off the moment Chunder called the on. He was getting the hang of those pesky Burnie trail markings now, especially the false trails. With lots of hills and valleys, Speedy and Dini used their buns to grade the leaf litter from an especially steep pinch. Through a fairy ring of macabre mushrooms, still heading downhill, the pack finally popped through a hole in the scrub, opening onto a grassy clearing with a grove of trees in the centre.

Under the trees were piss-stop supplies, lovingly carried there by Giggles' Mum (thanks Cynthia!). The pack lounged on tree stumps, speculating on the likely crop to be planted in the newly cultivated area nearby. Lack of fencing hinted that it would be something that wallabies won't eat—concrete garden gnomes perhaps? Checks for electric fences, lasers, tazers and weapons of moth destruction failed to unearth any covert crop defence mechanisms. (Apparently the crop is Transylvanian garlic.)

With the punch evaporated, Chunder moved the pack along. GonZo kindly reminded us all how far downhill we had come, in case we weren't depressed. On the way back up the predicted hill, Flasher found a big sandpit to play in—we could have left him there happily playing for hours, for want of a bucket and spade.

Back at the farm, Truly was let out of the car and was instantly set upon by a fierce tiger. Brave Sir Maggie came to A Bit of This' aid, accosted the slavering beast and turned it into a purring tortoiseshell pussy with a fluffy bum. (What could he do with a dragon, I hear you ask. Oh, the possible lines...).

The on on removed to Giggles' place, replete with enough food for a boatful of Hashers. Poxy lip Ringo meted out downs to the visitors Puss in Boots, Maggie and Hand Job. Other wickedness was punished with the remaining brew, with a cupful reserved for soaking into Ringo's new shoes. Giggles took the Hashit for applying lipstick and taking wankerphone calls in the circle.

The rigged raffle saw incest take out the prize again this week—Chunder has the luck of the Irish. Maggie and HJ eventually took out second prize after employing a QC and going to the High Court to have their ticket recognised by the Hash Hawker. Will we be brave enough to buy a ticket next week? Absolutely the best entertainment you'll ever get for two bucks.

A gentle reminder (with a Fubar) to those listed above that a written report on your respective roles and achievements during the year is required for the AGPU report.

Reports will be marked out of 27, and given points for creative use of statistics and novel excuses, so don't let the fact that you have been piss weak and lax in the execution of your duties all year hold you back now. Get busy...

...or your On Sex of The Poisoned Pen will write it for you, and like all the trashes this year, it will contain.....

THE COMPLETE & UNADULTERATED TRUTH !

A little boy says to his mother, "Mommy, how come I'm black and you're white?"

His mother replied, "Don't even go there son. From what I can remember about that party, you're lucky you don't bark!"

Clinically proven trials show that two out of three bunnies benefit from using "Superstiff"

Q— What does this Hasher's footy club and the object he is carrying have in common?

A— They are both full of turds

Puss says this punch gives you big tits—can I have another glass please?

Do you think they've realised its rigged yet, GonZo?

A good thing Giggs' drink is in the way—otherwise we would see her non-matching Lipstick, shock horror.
